

May is National Lyme Disease Awareness Month!

The West Virginia Bureau for Public Health in collaboration with West Virginia University presents:

A Close Look at Lyme Disease in West Virginia WEBINAR

Wednesday, May 13, 2015
12:00 pm - 1:30 pm

SAVE THE DATE: WEDNESDAY, MAY 13TH, 2015

Did you know that West Virginia had a 47% increase in the number of Lyme disease cases reported from 2012 to 2013? Do you know which counties are considered “endemic” for Lyme disease in the state? Are you familiar with the CDC-recommended two-tier testing for Lyme disease?

The West Virginia Bureau for Public Health (WVBPH), through a CDC-funded grant, will host a continuing education webinar in to educate healthcare providers on Lyme disease in West Virginia. The zoonotic disease epidemiologist in WVBPH will co-present with physicians from West Virginia University on various Lyme disease-related topics.

WEBINAR DETAILS

Target Audience: physicians, nurses, physician assistants, public health personnel, faculty, fellows, residents, students, and clinical staff.

Complimentary continuing education credit is available to the first 300 registrants.
